The Staten Island Children's Museum is now inviting applications for the 2017 Museum Intern Ambassador program

High School students, ages 15 through 18 are encouraged to apply

December 29, 2016--Now in its 17th year, the Staten Island Children's Museum Intern Ambassador Program is seeking students who wish to:

- Build their skills to successfully participate in adult life
- Earn work experience that will have a positive impact on college and work applications
- Develop leadership skills
- Learn conflict resolution
- Present exhibit based Museum programs to children and families
- Participate in and assist with Museum special events, and represent the Museum throughout the community.

Museum Intern Ambassadors represent a broad range of students. Teens with a desire to learn, a good work ethic, and currently enrolled in high school (public or private) are strongly encouraged to apply.

Applications are being accepted; visit our website to learn more about the program and to download your application. Twenty one students will be accepted into the prestigious program.

There will be an open house for prospective interns at the Museum on Thursday, January 12 from 4 to 6:30 p.m. Group Interviews will take place at the Staten Island Children's Museum, 1000 Richmond Terrace, Staten Island, on the grounds of Snug Harbor Cultural Center, on:

Thursday, January 19, Saturday, January 21, Sunday, January 22 and Thursday, January 26th
